Thanks, [Ex. 7(c)] I'm less worried about the level/accuracy of the cost estimates than I am about confirming that all of PSD and Advance needs are met in terms of resources. If you think that this budget does that for PSD, we can proceed from there. And I'm copying Kevin so that he can weigh in on the latest budget from Advance's perspective.

I also will need to break out these expenses between PSD and AO on the fund cite so can you please confirm that PSD covers all vehicles except the 8-Pax van? I'm also assuming that AO will cover non-security Embassy travel costs, interpretation and any cancellation fees.

Many thanks...

Anna

As funding cite in put goes, now I have no idea whether these costs are in line, bottom line post is the only game in town.

I do know – and not sure of what chart they may be buried in, but we would, of course, be responsible for all expenses to include travel and lodging as necessary for the FSNI who will accompany us.

Don't be thrown by the lack of certain vehicles you are used to seeing on PSD vehicle requests – the Italians are providing a security package of agents, drivers and vehicles.

Per our conversation, there is a change to the vehicle line up. We will now ask for the below vehicles. I am also attaching an updated budget to reflect this change. Please let me know if anyone sees anything out of place. Thank you!

I believe, but always open to recommendations, that we will have a two advance teams - security/staff and security staff that will need to operate independently from the delegation to conduct their advances.

Let's go with that same request for Bologna, at least to start.

And yes - I would guess that one of the 8 PAX vans would still be needed for motorcade transport, unless the numbers of seats needed are reduced further.

Correct me if I'm wrong, just want to be sure we are following:

Agree, that one 8 PAX for advance pick-up is good due to reduced advance staff.

On game day, your thought is to keep one 8 PAX van, drop the secondary 8 PAX we originally had in play, and replace that with (2) sedans? If so, we can do this. Seems the numbers still work for transport for everyone. Let me know and I will reach out to our motorpool for the switch and adjust the vehicle numbers on the budget.

Thoughts on advance vehicles.

Just based on my experience, my first thoughts is the 8 PAX vehicle for the advance phase is perfect.

But starting on game day, but suggestion is to move to two (2) sedans with drivers to enable the advance team members - both staff and security - to be able to bounce ahead and have leap frog ability to cover the various sites.

The van can likely be kept and used as the staff transport for the motorcade - based on manifest requirements.

I would assume we would be looking at something similar in Bologna, though the one main site is the G7.

Thoughts?
